

I am appalled that the FCC seems unwilling to take measures to correct a baldly partisan grab of our public airways for political advantage. Although seeing some of the recent record of the current FCC I guess I should not be so surprised...

Something MUST be done to remedy this situation. We are watching to see how this plays out, and to see just who is willing to speak out for the public trust here. We are making note of Sinclair's associates and advertisers, and of where the various involved - and willfully uninvolved - politicians stand. And how each of these individuals and companies respond to this situation will strongly influence our political and financial decisions in the future.

Thank you,
